Fernand Braudel was a French historian and a leader of the Annales School. His scholarship focused on three main projects: The Mediterranean, Civilization and Capitalism, and the unfinished Identity of France. His reputation stems in part from his writings, but even more from his success in making the Annales School the most important engine of historical research in France and much of the world after 1950. As the dominant leader of the Annales School of historiography in the 1950s and 1960s, he

Fernand Braudel | French historian and educator | Britannica

I come across references to historian Fernand Braudel frequently and would think I would enjoy his three-volume history of Europe but I will never allot that kind of time. So I finally selected this History of Civilizations just to get a sense of his writing style. He is an extremely valuable sentinel regarding the human race.
